

Lee Fuller has more than 40 years of experience in federal policy issues. Fuller was professional staff on the U.S. Senate Committee on Environment and Public Works including as the Minority Staff Director, serving under Senator Lloyd Bentsen. During this time, Fuller was involved with all major legislation developed by the Committee.

Subsequent to his service in Congress, Fuller has served as a vice president of the Smith-Free Group (and its predecessor organizations, Walker-Free Associates and Charles E. Walker Associates) and of Jellinek, Schwartz and Connolly, Inc., and as a senior legislative associate with Van Scoyoc Associates. At these firms he concentrated on developing, implementing and advocating policy strategies for clients involved with environmental legislation including proposals to restructure the regulation of oil and gas production wastes, the application of Superfund to oil and gas production facilities, and the air toxic provisions of the Clean Air Act as they apply to oil and gas production facilities.

In 1998, Fuller joined the Independent Petroleum Association of America. At IPAA, he managed the Association's government relations strategy to address both legislative and regulatory issues, such as tax and environmental policies. These include defending oil and natural gas tax provisions in major legislation, addressing the emergence of hydraulic fracturing, advocating for crude oil export policy and implementing strategies related to methane emissions.

Before coming to Washington, Fuller worked for Exxon Company, USA, at its Baytown, Texas, refinery providing technical support for process operations and managing environmental compliance issues. He graduated from Lehigh University as a Chemical Engineer.
